

Project data sheet

Broomwood Hall

Outline

Extension & refurbishment of a Listed Building for an independent school.

Description

This project involved the extension and refurbishment of a Grade II Listed Building to provide a flexible performance and assembly space for an independent preparatory school.

74 Nightingale Lane was constructed as a private house in 1872 in the Italian gothic style. Subsequent alterations destroyed the original proportions, but the striking six-storey 'campanile' survived.

The Practice was appointed to create a large theatre and assembly space by constructing a gridshell structured timber roof at second floor level, which is barely visible from street level. The new structure is exposed internally to provide a stunning column-free performance space.

Location

Clapham, London SW12

Client

Broomwood Hall School Ltd

Lead Architect

James Dinwiddie

Construction Cost

£915,000

Status

Completed February 2010

Site Area

2,300sqm

Building Area

324sqm